

Newspapers are a STRATEGIC CHOICE for Political Campaigns

Experts predict that more advertising dollars than ever before - $12 billion dollars - will be spent on the 2020 election. With the impact of the coronavirus thwarting traditional campaign marketing strategies, including the cancellation of rallies, conventions and get out the vote initiatives, reaching voters in an efficient and effective manner is more important than ever. As candidates, political action committees and special interest groups develop their media plans, newspapers are a strategic choice as they deliver an engaged and politically active audience.

Democratic, Republican and Independent voters are more likely than the average person to take action as a result of a newspaper ad.

Newspaper readers vote and TAKE ACTION

91.2% of adults who read a print or digital newspaper in the past week vote in local and state elections.

Newspaper readers are 23% more likely than the average person to contribute money to a political campaign.

60.5% of political campaign contributors have acted in the past year as a result of a newspaper ad.

Newspapers continue to be the MOST TRUSTED SOURCE of information 82% of news media consumers trust print ads in newspapers more than any other source.

Consumers' trust in print news media is more than double their trust in social media.

Democratic, Republican and Independent voters are more likely than the average person to read a newspaper 6 to 7 days a week.
